[From the Maine Farmer.]

STOCK-BREEDING AT BELLE VIEW RANCHE—ULTIMATE DISPOSITION OF THE PROPERTY.

I have in the two preceding papers briefly discussed the method of irrigation employed at the Belle View Ranche, in Southern California, and the chief crops which are there raised. The managers do not, however, confine their attention exclusively to crops. A large tract of land—about forty thousand acres—distant some thirty miles from Belle View, has been purchased and well stocked with cattle. There are upon this ranche nearly twenty thousand head of good beef cattle, and it is the custom to drive large herds during the autumn to Belle View, that they may have a month's fattening in the rich alfalfa fields. These great droves are under the government of the California herd men, whose skill and courage are well known. The "herder's" weapon is the lasso, and he handles it with as great skill and dexterity as the most accomplished driver his whip. At a full gallop he will hurl the lasso with the greatest accuracy and bring the animal which he pursues to a stand still or throw him to the ground. The vacqueros—as they are termed—are ordinarily Mexicans, brought up to herding as a business and more at ease in a saddle than in a chair. Peralta, a Mexican, has recently ridden three hundred miles in less than fifteen hours—an instance of physical endurance almost without parallel, but it is said that there are several vacqueros in California who are capable of performing a like feat. The profits from cattle-breeding—the risk being taken into consideration—are larger than any other business; being frequently fifty per cent. the risk being disease among the cattle and extreme drouth. Of course no such profit can be obtained where any attention is paid to the growth of grass, but alfalfa clover is exceedingly valuable in fattening cattle destined to slaughter. No sheep are raised on the ranche, as this industry demands a large amount of territory and diminishes the value of the land for several years, but the shearing is usually done here, whither the sheep are driven from their ground, some miles distant.

Considerable attention has, however, been paid to the breeding of horses. There are four stallions upon the farm—two of the best troting stock, and two of the Percheron type designed to improve the breed of draft horses. There are now from two to three hundred colts upon the farm, from one to four years of age; many of them of great value. The profits from the sale of horses, not needed, should be sufficient to pay for the rearing of such as are retained for farm use as pasturage is good throughout the year, and the expense of raising, therefore, very small.

The management of this great ranche—with its fifteen thousand acres of cultivated land, and the large number of men employed in redeeming some eighty thousand acres of desert ground—is a matter of no small magnitude. The farm is divided into sections, being managed from the section known as the Home Ranche. Each section is designed by a number and is governed by a sub-manager, but, as at present only a comparatively small portion of the land is under cultivation, many of the sections, though divided by boundaries, have no farm buildings, and the men employed upon them in irrigation, etc., reside at the sections where houses have been built. There are at present three principal divisions the Home Ranche, where the head superintendent and the engineer and surveyors employed upon the work of irrigation reside; Section No. 4, some two miles from the last named, where are the main stables, and where colts are broken and horses inspected; and the third a large farm some five miles from the Home Ranche. The Chinese employed upon the ranche generally prefer to live by themselves, and thirty or forty of them ordinarily dwell together in a "camp" of tents or rude huts. The work is carried on with as great system and accuracy as a large store or manufactory, all the men being paid at the Home Ranche on presentation of proper certificates of labor from the managers of the sections. No purchases or sales are made save by or under the authority of the chief manager, and a special book-keeper is employed for the accounts. The great interests involved are shown in the fact that more than a million dollars has been already expended;—that sometimes as many as four hundred are employed, and the pay-roll frequently amounts to ten thousand dollars per month. Nearly one hundred thousand dollars have been invested in machinery—there being about sixty agricultural machines and farm wagons, which require for locomotion from three to four hundred mules and horses. Already they have built over one hundred miles of fence.

The latitude of Kern county would lead to the inference that the summer heat is most intense, and such is the fact. At mid day on the fifth of June last, the thermometer in the shadiest spot upon the Home Ranche stood at 104°, and in the wheat field must have registered fully 140°. Yet man and beast were at work all day in this field, and seemed to pay no attention to danger from sunstroke or other cause. I was told that though strength was sooner exhausted than in a cooler climate, yet permanent ill effects were rarely or never experienced. The temperance cause, however, receives a strong ally in the sun, as it is exceedingly dangerous to use strong liquors while exposed to such intense heat. Two employees of the ranch on the 4th of July, 1877, fed their patriotism with a copious supply of whiskey, and one of them died that night, and the life of the other was with extreme difficulty saved.

Contemporary with the main and primal experiment of reducing the land to cultivation, the final experiment, which involves the ultimate disposition of the whole property has been carried on. To work a farm of more than one hundred thousand acres is, from a business point of view, not very profitable. The amount of capital necessarily invested is enormous, and the superintendance demands the careful personal supervision of the owners. The money used in the purchase of the land is "locked up" and it can never in an emergency be unlocked save at a great sacrifice. There are two courses open to the owner of such property—for he cannot dispose of it as a whole, save at great sacrifice—either to divide the and into many small farms and rent them, thus establishing the relation of landlord and tenant, or to dispose of these small farms absolutely. Where there is great abundance of land opened to squatters as in California, it is not easy to secure desirable tenants, nor are leased farms, as a rule, cultivated with the same care and attention as freehold property. A free man prefers to be a freeholder, and the owners of the land are generally the best citizens of the State. These considerations render it more desirable from broad views of policy and from self-interest, to sell the property outright if possible. But it very frequently happens that men in every other particular most desirable purchasers, have not sufficient capital. The men who have enough money to purchase two or three hundred acres of land do not as a rule desire to do so.

In a country of great commercial enterprises and fervish speculation where fortunes are quickly lost and still more quickly won, the men possessing moderate capital are generally desirous of engaging in speculations, living in large cities, or embarking in business in preference to agriculture. Nor can a man with a very small amount of money purchase sufficient land to make farming lucrative. Credit must therefore be given to the purchaser, and this is generally done by permitting a man to purchase at a fixed valuation, and pay what he can in cash, the land being then redeemed from mortgage by fixed annual payments. Very often men of little or no capital purchase farms, managers giving the seed and paying the larger part of the expense of farming implements, etc.—what in England is termed the "plant"—and trusting for repayment to the successful cultivation by the farmer. Quite a large number of Portugese—some thirty families—are now settled upon the ranch, as cultivators of small farms. The customary estimate of a Portugese is of a sailor of abandoned principles, who wears ear-rings and oils his hair; but the farmers of that nation are honest, prudent, peaceful and industrious. The prices of land are exceedingly reasonable and the managers are very liberal towards those desiring to buy, so that the opportunity for gaining a competence seems as great and as certain in this manner as in any other. I doubt not that a man with no capital save fair skill, honesty and muscle can here with certainty make for himself a happy home. W. B.

THE BEAR AND THE DORG.

A NEW VERSION OF AN OLD STORY.

BY J. T. TROWBRIDGE.

Says Uncle Slow to Uncle Joe,
"This card tha. I jest read
Is as square," says he, "as a card can be,
An' the' ain't no more to be said.
The hunt for fraud is a good hunt yit,
An' Sammy is still ahead."

Says Uncle Joe, "I guess that's so;
That's jest about so," says he.
"Sam's like the pup Tom Beale brought up—
Good pup as ever you see
To bark at a bul. behind the bars,
Or a squirrel up a tree.

"Jest fetch his nose to a chipmunk hole,
How the critter would tear an' yelp!
You'd 'a' sartain thought that dorg could 'a' fought
Six grizzlies, an' axed no help,
Upon my word, if ever you'd heard
Tom make his brags o' the whelp!

"One night a bear lugged off a pair
Of nice fat pigs for Beale.
One under each arm, he crossed the farm,
An' ye might 'a' heard 'em squeal
All over the lot, till he come to a spot
Where he stopped to have his meal.

"Tom heerd the racket, an' rushed to the pen
An' found what the brute had done.
He lit his lantern and called his dorg,
'An' now,' says he, 'for the fun!'
As he rammed a large bull-dozin' charge
In his double-barrelled gun.

"He found the spot an' made one shot;
An' then begun the chase!
The sun was up when the bear an' pup
Tore off at a thunderin' pace
Through a piece of woods, an' Tom was left
Behind 'em in the race.

"He follered the trail—'twas easy enough,
Bimeby a man he met,
Milk-pail in han', and Tom didn't stand
Very much on etiquette.
'Hev ye seen,' says he, 'a bear an' a dorg?'
An' the man, says he, 'you bet!'

"'How long ago?' 'Bout quarter 'n hour.'
Tom wiped the sweat an' said,
'Which had the advantage, should ye think?'
The feller scratched his head
In a candid way; 'Wal, the dorg, I sh'd say,
For he was a leetle ahead.'

"Now it seems to me," Uncle Joe, says he,
"That's jest the old man's case;
The hunt for fraud is a good hunt still,
An' his card may be an ace,
But Sammy somehow has got jest now
At the wrong eend of the race."

Business is reviving in Gardiner since the rise of water. Jewett's lumber mills, which have been shut down since August, are running with a full complement of men, and the paper mills which have been comparatively idle for want of water for several months, are running with full head and plenty of orders on hand for months to come.

A co-operative store and hall was dedicated at Searls' mill last week with an entertainment, consisting of speeches by several individuals, a poem by J. M. This will be occupied by the Grangers and Sons of Temperance.

This vessel has been exceptionally fortunate up to this time, Capt. Mitchell being a model master.

Dr. Hunter of Machias, was called to Whitneyville last Wednesday to attend Mr. Henry Palmer who met with a serious accident to one of his eyes. He was sawing wood when a knot flew and hit him exactly on the eye cutting clear through the lid and wounding the eye severely. The Dr. considers the case a very critical one for the eye.

THE FLOOR OF THE OCEAN.

Here is an end of all romance about hidden ocean depths. We can speculate no longer about peris in chambers of pearl, or mermaids, or heaped treasures and dead men's bones whitened in coral caves. The whole ocean floor is now mapped out for us. The report of the expedition sent out from London in her majesty's ship Challenger has recently been published. Nearly four years were given to the examination of the currents and floors of the four great oceans of the world.

The Atlantic, we are told, if drained, would be a vast plain, with a mountain ridge in the middle running parallel with our coast. Another range crosses it from Newfoundland to Ireland, on top of which lies a submarine cable. The ocean is thus divided into three great basins, no longer "unfathomable depths." The tops of these sea mountains are two miles below a sailing ship, and the basins, according to Recius, are fifteen miles, which is deep enough for drowning, if not for mystery. The mountains are whitened for thousands of miles by a tiny, creamy shell. The depths are red in color, heaped with volcanic masses. Through the black, motionless water of these abysses move gigantic abnormal creatures, which never rise to upper currents. There is an old legend coming down to us from the first ages of the world on which these scientific deep sea soundings throw a curious light. Plato and Solon record the tradition, ancient in their days, of a country in the western seas where flourished the first civilization of mankind which, by volcanic action, was submerged and lost. The same story is told by the Central Americans, who still celebrate, in the fast of Izcalli, the frightful cataclysm which destroyed this land with its stately cities. De Bourbourg and other archæologists assert that this lost land extended from Mexico beyond the West Indies. The shape of the plateau, discovered by the Challenger corresponds with this theory. What if some keen Yankee should yet dredge out from its unfathomed slime the lost Atlantis?

A STUPID DEMOCRATIC FORGERY

The Portland Argus of Monday printed with sensational headings the text of an alleged confidential circular, purporting to be issued and signed by Hon Eugene Hale, Chairman and George C Gorham, Secretary of the Republican Congressional Committee The Argus which copied this pretended circular from some other Democratic sheet characterized it as a last, desparing appeal of the Republican managers although it was too transparent a humbug to deceive any intelligent editor The alleged circular purported to be addressed confidentially to Republicans who have recently deserted the party, urging them to return and help carry the country in 1880 and holding out as an inducement a redistribution of patronage in which faithful workers would be rewarded We sent the Argus publication to Hon Eugene Hale by Tuesday morning's mail, and promptly received the following despatch repudiating the stupid Democratic forgery

THE REBEL YELL

[From the Providence Journal]

The Herald's Rebel Yell shouts the Boston Post The Republicans in the Southern States are pursued, driven from their homes or murdered for their political opinions Republican meetings in South Carolina are invaded by red shirt ruffians led by members of Gov Hampton's staff A State Republican by 20 000 majority is given over to the Democratic party by open violence not only unrebuked by the authorities who are bound to preserve the public peace and to protect the people in their political rights but encouraged and instigated by them A scene of wild riot is presented wherever a Republican organization dares to show its head whole States are subjected by violence and ruled by the shot gun The Journal copies the telegraphic accounts of these outrages and reproduces the narrative of them as recorded in the Southern Democratic papers And the organ of Barnaby and Davis shouts the Journal's Rebel Yell and charges us with waving the bloody shirt No, it is in South Carolina the home of secession the birth place of the rebellion that the rebel yell is raised and is ringing from the mountains to the sea. It is Gov Hampton who waves the bloody shirt red with the blood of innocent men, scourged and murdered for the offence of declaring their political rights in a peaceable and orderly manner Are we to understand that the Democratic candidates approve as their organ evidently does of all this violence and outrage? Are we to understand that if elected they will support by their votes the men who perpetrate them? And are we to understand that the people of Rhode Island are invited to echo back that rebel yell and to applaud the waving of that bloody shirt? We have too great confidence in the intelligence and patriotism of the people of the State to believe that they will respond affirmatively to that appeal, we believe that by their votes to-morrow they will emphatically rebuke the new rebellion that is raging in the South and will give an effectual quietus to the men in the North who sympathize with it

A QUESTION NOT SETTLED

Gail Hamilton utters words of truth and soberness when in a recent letter she says of the Southern question

It is a question which is vital A great crowd of witnesses have agreed that it is dead It was stabbed in the house of its friends A multitude of public men of political writers of merchant princes—the rich the religious the literary clergymen professors poets stood by consenting unto its death They buried it safe and deep They trimmed the turf over it snug and smooth They feasted on the funeral baked meats They raged against the few men here and there who protested against their deed They resolved and proclaimed and exulted that it was dead But it was not dead It was buried but it was buried alive The pipings of peace and festivity above it have not been able to smother the sounds of dole and dread that every fresh moan comes up from that fresh grave. It is sure as the rest of the land, it must ... rest.

Colonel Pelton's errand to Baltimore in November 1876 does not seem to have been one for which he courted the keen bright sunlight of publicity very much He wanted to see Smith Weed at Barnum's but found it expedient to hide himself at the Mount Vernon House But of course Mr Tilden never missed his nephew and confidential secretary all that day and never asked him where he had been!—Ir ...

WHOLESALE DISFRANCHISEMENT

EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND VOTERS IN THE SOUTH DEPRIVED OF REPRESENTATION

[Special Cor N Y Times]

WASHINGTON Friday, Nov 1 1878. If an absolutely fair election could be held in the Southern States an election at which every citizen might vote freely according to his inclination there is no doubt that from 11 of those States, at least 28 Republicans would be elected to the next Congress There would be four from Alabama one from Arkansas, one from Florida three from Georgia, four from Louisiana four from Mississippi four from North Carolina, three from South Carolina one from Texas, and the three from Virginia This is a modest estimate Even under the system of voting which prevailed in the South two years ago, and with the cotton States gerrymandered as they have been by Democratic Legislatures there should be at least 15 Republican Congressmen elected from the South—There should be two from Alabama, one from Arkansas one from Florida, one from Georgia, two from Louisiana, two from Mississippi, two from North Carolina, two from South Carolina, and two from Virginia In all the districts to which I refer there is a legitimate majority of at least 2,000 In some of them the Republican majority amounts to no less than 18,000 votes In spite of these majorities, however, it is not probable that the Republicans of the South will be allowed to elect more than six Republicans to the next Congress, and it is quite possible that they will be deprived of every Representative except two. Singularly enough, the White League leaders, growing bolder, as "the reconciliation policy" seems to become the more firmly established, are now most confident of securing those districts which contain the most overwhelming colored majorities, and which under their own infamous re-districting acts they conceded to the Republicans.

SENATOR BLAINE.

MAGNIFICENT OVATION IN PHILADELPHIA.

Enthusiastic Tributes of the Press.

The reports and editorial comments of the leading Philadelphia papers show that the reception given to Senator Blaine on Saturday evening was the grandest popular ovation ever witnessed in the Centennial City It is a source of pride to the people of Maine that our distinguished Senator meets such spontaneous and enthusiastic greeting in the foremost States of the Union, and that in his remarkable tour from East to West and back again as a champion of Honest Government and Honest Money, he has everywhere been hailed as a leader of leaders, and his so fully sustained his power and vigor through all this immense labor of campaigning that his closing speech proved the grandest triumph of his magnetic power We copy the following extracts from the leading Philadelphia papers including the Times which is opposed to the Republican party

[From the Philadelphia Inquirer editorial]

The Republican reception at the Academy of Music on Saturday evening, to receive Hon JAMES G BLAINE of Maine was the most imposing and significant political demonstration ever made in this city, whether the great respectability of those who participated their vast number or their unbounded enthusiasm for their guest be considered Not only was there not a vacant seat either in front or upon the stage, but every inch of standing room was packed with eager listeners and ardent admirers of the great statesman, and, multitudinous as the crowd inside was a still more multitudinous one vainly surged outside for admittance In fact a building thrice as large as large as the Academy could not contain the numbers who sought, on Saturday evening to see and hear Mr Blaine If there was at any time in this community a doubt entertained as to Mr Blaine, being the ... leader of the Republican party, one who stands ... and ... alike ... this position to him must have convinced the most skeptical that the right to the foremost place in the party's rank must be conceded him, and that only folly would dispute it with him Mr Blaine is a born leader of men, he his a noble presence a commanding mind fitted to it and a magnetic spirit which compels admiration respect and devotion to him and to his cause In fact political defeat would be impossible in a contest where he was the standard bearer His country will need a standard bearer soon and there he is—BLAINE OF MAINE

[From the Philadelphia Press editorial]

Never was a more brilliant close given to a great campaign than that by SENATOR BLAINE on Saturday evening last The Academy of Music was crowded to its uttermost capacity and thousands were unable to secure a place The representative men of the city, in every department of life assembled to greet him and bid him welcome to this citadel of Republicanism His reception was cordial to the last degree and proved if any doubted how deep and genuine and pervading is the affection of the Republicans of our city for this great champion of our cause

His speech will be found in full in our columns It is a masterly discussion of the great questions which await the popular verdict In clearness of thought elevation of sentiment, strength of statement wealth of historical knowledge aptness of illustration finality of speech keenness of wit and in all the essentials of power it will rank with the best efforts of popular oratory It held without a break for nearly two hours the vast audience which swayed under his convincing argument his sug gestive satire and his impassioned appeal or broke forth in sympathy with his sarcasm or his fun

What he said upon the Southern question cannot but attract general attention No man in the Nation more thoroughly than he understands the Southern mind No one is so well qualified as he to meet expose confront, and defeat its crafty purposes What he says of the increased power secured by the Southern Democracy by their treacherous cruel and ignominious denial of the rights of their colored population will get lodgement some time in the Northern mind and added to the sense of right will make it certain in the coming of to morrow's sun that this stain of dishonor shall no remain upon the country The applause which rushed forth ... this part of the Senator's speech ... continued and brought to their feet both tottering age and ... youth ... sympathetic ... shrinking ... In the new campaign before us under his blazing banner of the equal enjoyment of ... and ... rights the Republican will go forth to a battle in which they will be sustained by all the moral elements in our citizenship, and to a victory which will be of grander significance than any ever achieved from the beginning of time to this day

[From the Philadelphia Times Ind, Dem]

Last evening when BLAINE, of Maine was introduced from the stage of the Academy of Music to over five thousand people in the auditorium applause broke out that lasted till the distinguished man raised his hands entreating for silence Every man stood up and waved his hat The ladies, of whom there were not a few, waved their handkerchiefs and the six hundred men or more that represented the Union Republican Club and were seated on the stage stood up too and shouted Hurrah for Blaine! The Academy held about half as many as applied at the crowded entrances to admission, and during the two hours that Mr Blaine spoke the great audience stirred only to applaud and cried for more when he said "thank you" and "good night" Charles Gibbon called the meeting to order and spoke for a few minutes, touching the importance of the issues that the Republican party are called upon to meet in the present campaign, and presented Henry C Lea as presiding officer Mr Lea without delay introduced the orator of the evening and Mr Blaine stepped forward When the applause—such as the Academy has probably never before known—ceased Mr Blaine began and spoke substantially as follows

[From the Phil Times editorial]

Senator Blaine was welcomed to Philadelphia as he well deserved from the Republicans of the city, where he is so strongly enshrined in the hearts of his partisans In all that could do honor to the confessed chieftain of the Republican popular leaders there was nothing wanting, and very many who differ from his political faith attended and heard his eloquent address His speech was a regular hustings deliverance and had the usual mixture of bloody-shirt fireworks for the galleries, but on the issues which could be grasped by statesmanship in a statesmanlike manner in a campaign appeal, he was profoundly able and impressive It is a remarkable fact that on the financial issue, Senators Blaine and Bayard spoke substantially in the same strain and presented the same views, but they widely diverged on all other questions It is like an oasis in the desert of regulation campaign oratory to hear such champions of antagonistic political views as the opposing Senatorial Leaders from Maine and Delaware

[From the Phil Public Ledger]

The immense audience within the Academy of Music on Saturday evening was not nearly so large as the disappointed multitude who were turned away from its doors unable to obtain admittance. For more than half an hour before the appearance of the speaker the corridors were crowded with a surging mass vainly endeavoring to get into the auditorium, which was already packed as close as possible. Carl Sentz's Orchestra kept them in good humor until the arrival of the distinguished Senator when everybody arose and cheered; handkerchiefs and hats were swung in air, the ladies, who formed a very considerable proportion of the audience, vieing with the men in their enthusiasm. It was several minutes before Mr. Charles Gibbons could be heard, who then nominated Mr. Henry C. Lea as presiding officer. * * Mr. Lea then came forward and introduced the speaker.

As Mr. Blaine advanced to the front of the Academy stage, which was crowded with the members of the Union Republican Club and other prominent citizens the tumultuous applause which greeted his first appearance was renewed, and was only brought to an end by the deprecating manner of its recipient He then, after expressing his thanks for the personal compliment paid him, spoke for nearly two hours, arousing an enthusiasm at times which showed how thoroughly he was in sympathy with his audience

[From the Phil North American]

Senator Blaine is always sure of a hearty welcome from Philadelphia, but the enthusiasm of the reception given him on Saturday evening seemed more of a popular than political demonstration. The address was one of the finest of the campaign and perhaps the most effective that has been delivered in this city this fall It was a brilliant speech, and it gave additional pleasure to those who had heard him before, for they could see that the great Senator from Maine was in the best of spirits, and that his strong constitution had carried him through the hard work of October without drawing upon the vitality so necessary or the arduous work of the winter session of Congress

[From the Phil Enquirer report]

Senator Blaine spoke for one hour and forty minutes Any attempt to describe the interior of the building would scarcely convey an idea of the life and enthusiasm contained therein The great broad tiers, rising one above the other to a height at which men look like pigmies, were not only filled, but even more, they were crowded People accommodated themselves comfortably in a space that would have under other circumstances been considered beyond the point at which forbearance ceases to be a virtue There was not a place unoccupied

* It was nearly a quarter past eight o'clock when the band played "Hail to the Chief," and the closely packed line in the wings to the right began to give way before the pressure of Captain Wood's police Mayor Stokley struggled through to the front followed by Hon Morton McMichael Senator Blaine General Harry Bingham, John E Addicks and others The appearance of Blaine was magnetic The vast audience rose to its feet and cheered frantically Ladies waved their handkerchiefs and the crowd in the street, greater than that in the building, took up the shout

* * During the applause which greeted the Senator upon his first appearance while he stood and bowed his acknowledgments the audience had an excellent opportunity to sketch him hastily He is not much more than of the average height stout broad shouldered, and has crisp iron grey hair. The face is full, the forehead massive and the eyes intensely black and penetrating The general expression of the face is that of a man who is given to deep thought He stands erect, and the large round head is set squarely upon the shoulders

* The meeting was called to order by Charles J Gibbons Esq who after a few remarks introduced Mr Henry C Lea as permanent chairman Senator Blaine was introduced to the audience amid a storm of applause that lasted so long he was compelled to wave his hand for silence

* * Senator Blaine was frequently interrupted with applause during his remarks, and when he had concluded the audience gave way to the wildest cheering He was taken from the Academy to the Union Republican Club which was brilliantly illuminated, and there entertained. The streets in the vicinity were filled with people and as the carriage containing the distinguished statesman passed, he was loudly cheered There was a magnificent display of fireworks and but a short while afterward the Veteran Club arrived, acting as an escort to Governor Hartranft General Hoyt Attorney General Lear and State Treasurer Rawle whom they had met at Ninth and Green streets on their arrival from places along the Norristown railroad where they had been speaking

When the procession reached the Union Club the cheering was terrific and Senator Blaine, Governor Hartranft, General Hoyt and others made short speeches in answer to repeated calls At twelve o clock Senator Blaine General Hoyt Governor Hartranft General Bingham Mayor Stockley and others in procession marched to the Continental Hotel, followed by the Veteran Corps and a large concourse of people. Senator Blaine took dinner with General Bingham yesterday afternoon and left for home last evening at twenty five minutes of eight, accompanied to the depot by Gov ernor Hartranft General Hoyt Mayor Stockley and others

3 A M—The total vote for Governor as received is Talbot 129,219, Butler 106,066; Abbott 9,494, Miner 1,816 The towns still to be heard from will increase Talbot's majority over Butler to an excess of 25,000.

Prescott, Rep, 15,262, Frank A McKean, 14,3.., scattering 13. From the returns received it appears that Head is elected by the people and it is probable that Republican Congressmen are elected in each of the Districts The Republicans claim that they shall have at least thirty five majority in the House.

Republican Governor Elected

CONCORD, Nov 6—1 30 A M The footings of 1.0 towns indicate the election of Head, Rep, as Governor, by the people, by somewhere in the vicinity of 1 000 majority There are 2.6 towns and wards yet to be heard from and there is a falling off in the aggregate vote of the State of from 1,200 to 1,500

Legislature Strongly Republican

As far as returned the House stands 80 Republicans, 60 Democrats, and 6 Greenbackers

FIRE AT EAST HAMPDEN About six o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Jos. Glynn, living on the Hampden road, in East Hampden, a short distance below the railroad bridge, left his house to go to his work at Sterns's Mill, and remembering that he had left his pipe and tobacco returned for them, when he found his kitchen full of smoke, and in a brief time the house, ell and barn were entirely destroyed. The family got out no clothing except what they had on. About half the furniture was saved. Six cords of wood and fourteen hens were burned. Loss about $1200. An alarm was sent to this city and the steamer Hook and Ladder carriage and several hose carriages went down, but were unable to do anything toward arresting the progress of the flames, but rendered efficient service in saving other adjacent buildings Most of the furniture was removed, but the house, ell and stable were burned to the ground, leaving nothing but the cellar and chimneys to show where once stood the handsome residence of Mr. Wheelden, which was the handsomest on the road, and attracted much attention from all passers for its neat and tasteful appearance and the fine manner in which the grounds around it were kept. The house was quite new, two stories and a half in height, with an ell and a handsome barn and cost some seven thousand dollars. It was insured for $4000 in the Phenix, at Blake's Agency It is not known how the fire originated but the opinion of the owner is that there must have been some defect in the chimney The house of Benj Simpson near by, was saved with great difficulty, it having taken fire several times from the flying cinders Mr Simpson is Engineer at Sterns' mill

From West Waterville

Our correspondent writes Another incendiary fire occurred last Sunday night in the neighborhood adjoining the Belgrade town line This time it was Mr Ruel Ellis' barn He lost all his hay grain, &c and a horse, and is left in bad shape so far as wintering his stock is concerned Some scoundrel has seemingly determined to destroy all the buildings in that vicinity. This is a third barn fired there within a month—Mr. C. B Lovejoy's being the first, Mr Edmund Crowning's the second and then the above Mr Ellis is the greatest sufferer, he having lost a valuable span of work horses, quite early in the season then a yoke of steers, all by poisoning. When this fire was first discovered, he hastened to his barn to remove his horse, but found the horse already dead, with the blanket over his head. Suspicion points strongly to two parties, but as yet no arrests have been made.

We had our first snow on the 4th. The shops are all very busy, with a prospect of a good year's work

Preparations are being made for the Memorial Hall Levees. The West Waterville Band will furnish one evening's entertainment, which will consist of vocal and instrumental music, literary and dramatic exercises. G

DR. NORMAN'S FOOT SALVE,

The Sure Cure for Corns and Infallible Remedy for Bunions, Sore and Inflamed Joints and Chilblains.

This Salve is the result of years of study and experiments by a distinguished Chiropodist, and we feel confident, in offering it to the public that it will meet the wants of thousands of people that are afflicted with these most troublesome of diseases—Corns Bunions and Sore Joints—as every person so suffering can be cured by using this Salve It has an advantage over other preparations of a like nature in the market, that it does not burn the corn out, but it softens the flesh around it, and so separates it that it can be removed without pain or bleeding Persons using this Salve will find it will work as follows

After applying the salve three or four times a ring will appear around the corn, which indicates that it has become separated from the true flesh and it can now be easily removed or after another application it will fall off itself For a Bunion, Sore or Inflamed Joint one application will almost entirely remove the inflammation, and if persisted in will surely cure

This Salve will not cure a soft corn but will remove the inflammation and keep the foot in a comfortable condition
